Leiden Congregation and Families

1. Allerton, Isaac - (1585/6-1659) Allerton is believed to have been born in London, England and was raised to become a tailor. After arriving on The Mayflower, Allerton quickly rose to prominence among the Pilgrim leaders, serving as William Bradford's assistant governor during the early years of the colony. After the adoption of a more formalized governmental structure in 1624, he served again as one of five assistant governors. In 1627, he became one of the eight "undertakers" of the colony's debt and made several voyages to London to negotiate with the colony's creditors. Allerton is an ancestor to Presidents of the United States Zachary Taylor and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He signed the Mayflower Compact on November 11, 1620, and on the same day was elected to a one-year term as governor. He was probably instrumental in choosing Plymouth as the site for settlement and in making the treaty of alliance with Chief Massasoit of the Wampanoag tribe in 1621.
